Training and ensuring safety in the warehouse is crucial for your company's success and well-being of your employees. Every worker in your warehouse must be equipped with the knowledge to navigate potential hazards: operating equipment, practicing safe lifting methods, or undergoing mandatory forklift training as per OSHA standards.

The OSHA Guidelines 29 CFR 1910.178(l) mandates training and authorization for every operator individuals operating powered industrial trucks, specifically forklifts, within a worksite. Before anyone can safely use this type of equipment, they must first be evaluated and certified.
